

ASSIGNMENTS

Limited Submission Attempts Enforcement

Submission attempts can be limited in Canvas assignments. This feature allows you to limit submission attempts for students.

By default, assignments can be submitted an unlimited number of times. However, you can choose to limit the number of attempts a student can make for an assignment by using the Attempts menu.

COURSES

Instructor Publishing Improvements Enforcement

The Dashboard, Courses menu, and All Courses page display both published and unpublished courses. This change helps you see what courses are unpublished in various Canvas locations.

Dashboard

The Dashboard displays two sections: published courses and unpublished courses. Unpublished courses display at the bottom of the Dashboard.

Note: The Dashboard only displays favorited courses for the current term or course dates.

If you have been given the Course State - Manage permission, courses can be published directly from the Dashboard without having to open the course. The existing behavior for publishing courses still applies—Canvas will display the window to select a home page if no Modules exist in the course.

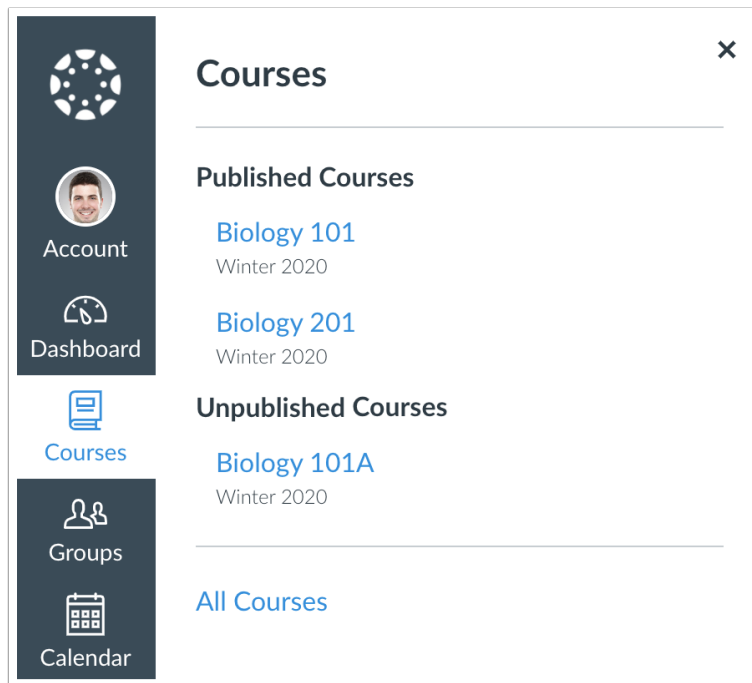

Once published, the course displays in the Published Courses section.

Courses Menu

From Global Navigation, the Courses menu also displays courses as published and unpublished. Once a course is published, the Unpublished heading is removed, and the published course is listed along with the other published courses.

Note: The Courses Menu only displays favorited courses for the current term or course dates.

All Courses Page

In the All Courses page, unpublished courses are identified with a gray background if they are within the current term or course dates and display at the end of the section. Unpublished courses in past or future enrollments also display at the end of the section, but they are not indicated with the gray background.

Once the course is published, the gray background is removed.
